

Chime and Invest America Launch the Compound Combine™ Series to Help All American Families Build Wealth Early

May 29, 2026

JERSEY CITY, N.J.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--May 29, 2026-- Chime® (Nasdaq: CHYM), The #1 Most Loved Banking app<sup>1</sup>, and Invest America kicked off the Compound Combine yesterday in Jersey City, N.J. The event is the first in a new series of financial education community events designed to help families learn how wealth builds over time.

The initiative reflects a broad belief shared across sectors and political perspectives: helping children access investing and long-term savings early in life can expand economic opportunity and strengthen financial mobility. A very small percentage of American children today have investment accounts. The Compound Combine was created to help close that gap by making wealth-building education and long-term investing more approachable for everyday families.

The Compound Combine brings financial education to life for families through football combine-style drills that show why investing early matters. The event also includes resources and hands-on experiences to increase awareness of and participation in Trump Accounts, a new program implemented by the U.S. Treasury Department and championed by Invest America. Trump Accounts are tax-advantaged individual retirement accounts (IRAs) that give children under 18 a way to build long-term savings and put the power of compounding interest to work over time. At the event, students and parents also can participate in engaging activities meant to strengthen financial literacy and learn to invest in their futures through educational materials designed by the Council for Economic Education (CEE).

"Under the leadership of President Trump and Secretary Bessent, nearly 6 million children have already enrolled in Trump Accounts, giving them a stake in that future. This progress is driven by strong public-private partnerships and community engagement, and the Treasury Department is grateful to Chime for helping more families participate in Trump Accounts at scale," said Luke Pettit, Assistant Secretary for Financial Institutions at the U.S. Department of the Treasury who joined the event yesterday. "Financial literacy fuels the American Dream and helps secure our nation's future. As we approach America's 250th anniversary, ensuring the next generation can participate in our nation's prosperity is more important than ever."

"Fewer than 5% of kids currently have investment accounts. That's the gap Invest America set out to close, and that Trump Accounts were built to solve," said Brad Gerstner, Founder of Invest America. "Chime brings something critical to this mission: the reach and trust of millions of everyday Americans, and that's exactly who this program was built for. When a company puts its own money into their employees' kids' accounts and brings this message directly to communities, that's the kind of partnership that drives real impact."

"We appreciate the leadership of the Treasury Department and Invest America in driving financial literacy and the Trump Account program forward," said Chris Britt, Co-founder and CEO of Chime and member of Invest America's CEO Council. "We serve more than 10 million members, many of whom are new to investing. Our mission has always been about helping everyday people unlock their financial progress, and Trump Accounts give us a powerful new way to deliver on that promise at scale. Chime has already helped families elect to open an estimated 130,000 Trump Accounts, and we're just getting started."

The Jersey City event marks the launch of a nationwide Compound Combine series, with more events to come across the country. To extend the impact beyond the events, Chime announced a national partnership with CEE to bring wealth-building curriculum and educator support into classrooms, starting in New Jersey. This commitment ensures that conversations started at the Compound Combine don't end when families go home, and furthers Chime's broader goal of bringing financial education to 10 million people by 2027.
